Spring fever...now camping fever

Owner Harvey Brilliant putting the final touches on a fifth wheel RV activities at a local business.

In anticipation of the fast approaching camping season, the owners of Chapleau Trailer Sales, Harvey and Monique Brilliant are busily preparing and taking recreational trailers out of winter storage for some of their customers.

Having been in business for close to fifteen years, steadily growing, year after year, they have become an indispensable service for locals and visitors alike. "We may be small, but we can still do it all" says Harvey Brilliant. "We have technical support available at the end of the phone line if needed and we can have your parts in twenty four hours or less if we happen not to have them in stock." he adds.

Being a seasonal operation from mid April to mid October adds pressure to the workload. Ensuring that inventory is appropriate, in itself, is a feat of prediction.

Aside from the sale of utility trailers and the used RV campers, this year Monique and Harvey will have new RV campers available to the customers' specifications and delivered within a couple of days.

It is quite impressive to have such an array of supplies and services available in our community. From solar panels to batteries, generators to trailer

After a long and arduous winter, spring fever has overtaken all of us. People are raking their yards, detouring around mounds of stubborn snow. Birds are loudly making their presence known. Flocks of Canada geese are flying by, but a sure sign that spring has arrived and that camping fever is here is the beehive like hitches, new and used recreational vehicles and utility trailers.

This is enough to make other communities envious.

Klapouschak was killed by Robert Bruce Ducsharm, a C.P.R. Extra Gang worker. His Preliminary Hearing was held in Chapleau and, after two trials in Sudbury, Ducsharm was hanged in the Sudbury Jail on June 15, 1956. Many well known Chapleau and area residents were witnesses at the

REPORT from OTTAWA by Brent St. Denis

Can Conservatives Keep Canada Out of the Red?

Liberal Finance critics are calling on the Conservatives to keep Canada's books balanced following a new report from a major credit rating agency which predicts Canada is on the brink of going into deficit for the first time in over a decade.

The report from the Dominion Bond Rating Service (DBRS) says "it is likely that the government would run its first budgetary deficit" if economic growth for the coming year doesn't meet government expectations.

If this happens it would be the first time the Government of Canada runs a deficit since the previous Liberal government with the help of hard working Canadians eliminated the $42-billion deficit left behind by Brian Mulroney's Conservatives. The Liberal Party's economic strength has resulted in a string of eight consecutive surpluses, a streak DBRS says the current Conservative government has put in jeopardy.

Liberal Finance Critic John McCallum, who is a former senior vice president and chief economist for the Royal Bank, as well as a former professor of economics expressed his worry that the Conservatives are not good economic managers.

Associate Liberal Finance Critic Martha Hall Findlay also noted that Conservative governments have a long history of running deficits in Canada. Between 1918 and 2005, not a single Conservative Prime Minister ran a balanced budget. From Meighen to Bennett, and from Diefenbaker to Mulroney, Conservative prime ministers have shown no reservations about deficit financing, and it appears that Stephen Harper is the same.

Liberals put this country back on solid economic footing, all while cutting taxes. At the same time Jim Flaherty, as then-Conservative Ontario Finance Minister, left Ontario with a $5.6-billion deficit. True to form, he has now brought down the two largest-spending budgets in Canadian history, putting Canada at the risk of deficit. In the face of global economic instability Canadians want a proven, steady Liberal hand on the wheel to navigate the country through rough economic waters.

This is not the first time an independent third party has warned that the Conservatives are leading Canada into another deficit.

Recently, the Canadian Centre for Policy Alternatives warned that the Conservatives have left the cupboards dry and "it would not take much of a drop in economic growth before the budget returned to deficit."

Reports such as these should sound alarm bells for the Conservatives. It remains to be seen if they will take any action to correct their own mistakes.

On the week-end of March 14 and 15, the Curling Club held it's annual Shamrock spiel.

Twelve teams came out to close the season. Way to go! Using a new point system instead of an A,B and C event, The Young Guns skipped by Patrick Brousseau came out on top.

Patrick was helped by the stellar play of his Vice-Vincent Carriere, Second- Chantal Servent and Lead Jeff Tremblay.

Coming in second place was the team Skipped by Tom O'Shaughnessy Jr., Vice- Bonnie O'Shaughnessy, Second- Bruce Schuurman and Lead-Nicole Schuurman. Nice to see some Old Blood back.(Ha! Ha!) Sorry, I didn't get pictures...

The Chapleau Curling Club would like to thank the Township of Chapleau for their continued support. THANK YOU!

We would also like to thank the numerous volunteers that made this season possible. THANK YOU EVERYONE!

It's now easier and more affordable than ever to clean green (NC)—Going "green" doesn't have to be all or nothing. Making even small changes in your every day life can have an enormous positive impact on the environment and make your home safer for your family. Take how you clean – something most of us do often.

You may have thought about green cleaning before, but worried it would be more expensive, involve a lot more elbow grease or not do the job. But green cleaning doesn't have to mean shopping at expensive specialty stores, messy concoctions of vinegar and baking soda, or settling for less than stellar cleaning results.

Wal-Mart Canada's recent launch of its own line of environmentally preferable cleaning products, called the GreenLine, shows just how far green cleaning has come. The line is mainstream, effective, affordable, easy to find and, most importantly, certified to be safer for the environment and your family.

Available in every one of Wal-Mart Canada's 299 stores nationally, from the Yukon to Newfoundland, the GreenLine is effective and priced less than most conventional cleaning products. Certified by Environmental Choice's EcoLogo program, North America's most widely recognized and respected certification of environmental leadership, you can be sure the GreenLine is safe for your family and the environment.

"Our aim is to provide customers with a practical and affordable way to green their homes without making trade-offs," said Sylvain Prud'homme, senior vice president of merchandising for Wal-Mart Canada. "We don't believe customers should have to choose between products they can afford and products that are environmentally friendly. Making quality green products more accessible and affordable for all of our customers is one of the ways we're trying to help people save money so they can live better."

Wal-Mart Canada carries a wide range of other environmentally preferable cleaning products and cleaning aids such as reusable cleaning cloths, biodegradable garbage bags and recycled papertowels.

Ontario Greenhouse Vegetables: How to care, store & select

CUCUMBERS

How to care and store English seedless cucumbers.

Refrigeration before use is not necessary with English seedless greenhouse cucumbers. Ontario Greenhouse cucumbers do NOT require peeling. Their thin, un-waxed skin is completely edible.

English seedless cucumbers are wrapped in plastic to seal-in their natural moisture and prolong shelf life. You can store them in a cool place for up to 10 days. Because of the plastic seal, they do not require waxing, so their edible skin has no bitter taste—just slice and enjoy! You can use as much of the cucumber as you need, then fold the plastic over and save the rest for next time.

How to care and store mini cucumbers

Greenhouse grown mini cucumbers are increasingly popular, especially with kids. Up to 15 cm long and weighing 150-200 g, they are sweet and aromatic and have an edible skin. They may be kept about a week in the refrigerator crisper or two weeks if packed in cling-film. Avoid storing in cucumbers with fruits that produce the natural ripening agent ethylene, such as apples, pears and bananas.

How to select

Look for cucumbers that are a deep, vivid green colour. They should be blemish-free and heavy for their size. Check to ensure there are no soft spots or blemishes, especially at the ends.

TOMATOES

How to care and store NEVER refrigerate tomatoes- it spoils their taste and ruins their texture. Ontario Greenhouse tomatoes should be stored in a cool location, ideally at 13 to 15 degrees Celsius, or 55 to 60 degrees Fahrenheit, out of direct sunlight.

How to select

Look for tomatoes that are plump, firm, free of surface cracks and bruises and heavy for their size. Selecting tomatoes that are at varying degrees of ripeness will ensure that you have perfect tomatoes every day of the week!

PEPPERS

How to care and store Greenhouse peppers are best stored in the refrigerator until you are ready to use them. Rinse in cold water before food preparation. Remove the core and seeds; cut into bite-size pieces or strips. Great raw, in stir-fries, baked, grilled or roasted. How to select Choose sweet peppers that are smooth, firm and plump with thick shiny skins. Make sure that there are no cracks or soft spots. only.

CPSO issues record-breaking number of new licenses issued to international medical graduates (IMGs) than to Ontario graduates.

"Ontario patients are reaping the rewards of more doctors in practice," said CPSO President Dr. Preston Zuliani. "Many important policies and programs collaboratively developed by the CPSO, government, medical schools, and other stakeholders are increasing the overall physician supply," said Dr. Zuliani, a family physician from St. Catharines. Last year alone, an additional 290 physicians were accepted into practice in Ontario who otherwise would not have been eligible for a license but for CPSO registration policies and programs.

The survey findings indicate that the proportion of physicians practicing in clinical groups is significantly increasing and that those who work in a clinical group are more likely to be accepting new patients. The survey also reveals a slight increase in the overall number of family physicians accepting new patients (10% up from 9.6% in 2006). For the first time in seven years, the downward trend is stabilizing.

"While Ontario is benefiting from the record-breaking number of newly registered doctors, the CPSO will continue to collaborate with the government and other partners to improve access to care for patients. We must strive for sustainability as the physician population ages," said Dr. Zuliani.

Other key highlights include:

- "Overall supply of physicians in practice is up 13% in the last decade (from 20,053 to 22,725);

- "1,410 practice certificates (excludes educational certificates) were issued in 2007 - the highest annual total since 1993.

- "38% of practice

certificates went to IMGs; 37% to Ontario graduates.

The CPSO survey has a 96% response rate, exceeding that of any other known physician survey in Canada. The report focuses on the 22,793 physicians who have active, independent practice license status, with a primary practice address in Ontario. The full report is available online at www.cpso.on.ca under What's New.

CNW/ - A report released today by the College of Physicians and Surgeons of Ontario (CPSO) shows that more doctors were registered to practice in 2007 than ever before. The number of doctors licensed surpassed the 2006 record total by 11%.

Reaping the Rewards - Striving for Sustainability, contains both licensing statistics and the findings of the CPSO annual survey of physicians in practice, and shows that a record-breaking 3,279 certificates were issued last year. For the fourth straight year, more certificates were

Peanut Butter Brown Sugar Scones

(NC)—The secret to these scones is to use cold shortening and peanut butter when you mix them up... this gives scones a light yummy texture. Serve them right out of the oven and they'll disappear before your eyes. (But mom will definitely approve.)

Scones

2 cups Robin Hood Nutri Flour Blend 500mL
1/2 cup brown sugar 125mL
4 tsp baking powder 20 mL
1/4 tsp salt 1mL
3/4 cup Jif Creamy Peanut Butter, cold 175mL
1/3 cup Crisco All Vegetable Shortening, cold 75mL
1 egg 1
1/2 cup milk 125 mL

Topping

1/3 cup brown sugar 75 mL
Preheat oven to 425°F (220°C). Line a baking sheet with parchment paper. Combine flour, brown sugar, baking power and salt in a medium sized bowl.

Cut in shortening and peanut butter until mixture resembles coarse meal. Add egg and milk, stirring with a fork to create a soft, slightly sticky dough. Knead gently and press dough into a ball. Place remaining brown sugar and peanuts on work surface. Press dough into mixture and shape into 3/4" (2cm) thick round. Turn dough over and press into any remaining mixture. Cut into 12 triangles and place on prepared cookie sheet.

Bake in preheated oven for 12-15 minutes or until golden. Let cool on racks.

National Cancer Awareness

April is National Cancer Month, a time for all of us to make ourselves aware of the facts when it comes to this prevalent family of diseases.

Cancer is the leading cause of premature death in Canada. According to the Canadian Cancer Society, 39 percent of women and 44 percent of men will develop cancer in their lifetime. If caught early enough, cancer can be treated, and in some cases even cured. A cancer diagnosis does not have to be a death sentence.

We all want a health care system that gives us the best chance to catch cancer early to increase our chances our survival in the event that we are diagnosed with the disease.

This is why our government, in the 2008 Ontario Budget, committed $154 million over three years to increase the early detection and facilitate treatment of breast, cervical and colorectal cancers. This investment will also include funding to extend the human papillomavirus virus (HPV) vaccination program. HPV is a common sexually transmitted disease that causes cervical cancer. Last fall, the Ontario government made the three-dose vaccination program available to approximately 84,000 young women in Grade Eight.

But this is just the tip of the iceberg in our efforts to fight cancer.

Our government is working with Cancer Care Ontario and the Ontario Medical Association to identify, target and reduce the number of cancer-causing agents released into the environment.

We are proposing to ban smoking in cars where children are present, to ensure one of the most vulnerable segments of our society are no longer exposed to the cancer-causing effects of second-hand smoke. We are proposing to make the Retail Sales Tax exemption for qualifying nicotine replacement therapies permanent, to assist smokers in their efforts to quit. And effective May 31, 2008, we are banning completely the displaying of tobacco products as originally set out in the Smoke-Free Ontario Act.

This government is committed to not only fight cancer, but to address the root causes in an effort to promote wellness and prevent illness. We recognize that cancer is the leading cause of death, and we are taking steps to tackle the issue head-on.

Ontario already boasts one of the most comprehensive smoke-free strategies in North America. It includes one of the toughest laws to protect people from second-hand smoke in restaurants, bars, offices, schools, daycare centres and hospitals.

Planning and planting your garden oasis

(NC)—Gardening not only connects us to planet Earth, but allows us to enjoy the many fruits of our labour with colourful blooms all season long. Prior to planting, The Home Depot Canada has put together tips to help you plan and cultivate your garden oasis.

It's all in the plan. To determine what types of plants to grow, scope out the area to see how much wind and sunshine it receives. Next, observe key elements of good landscape design including proportion and repetition. For variety, consider a three-tier design with tall, upright plants in the back, bushy medium plants in the middle and trailing plants in the front.

Perennial power. Perennials have staying power, dying off in the fall, but returning in the Spring. They require minimal care and thrive for decades. The secret: plant a mix of perennials with different blooming times so you'll have colour in your garden from Spring to Fall.

Herb aroma. Creating and growing a small herb garden is an easy Mother's Day activity for the entire family. Herbs from the garden provide fresh flavour to home cooked meals, add a pleasant aroma to the backyard and can be easily contained. Think vertical and maximize space by hanging a pot of herbs from a hook or use growing poles for vine vegetables.

Try xeriscaping. This is an environmentally friendly form of landscaping that uses a variety of indigenous and drought-tolerant plants, shrubs and ground cover. This self-sustaining garden is low maintenance because the native plants thrive in their local environment, providing a habitat for local wildlife.

Eco maintenance. Rich compost is one of the best things you can feed your garden. Using a compost bin creates a cozy place for microorganisms to convert organic waste into a soil-like substance.

Also, consider using a rain barrel that connects directly to your eavestrough downspout and take advantage of the season's downpours while saving on water.

Planifier un voyage en voiture

(EN)—Avec le retour du beau temps, les automobilistes ont l'impression de pouvoir relaxer au volant maintenant que les conditions de route difficiles de l'hiver sont histoire du passé. Bien que la conduite en été ne soit pas aussi compliquée que la conduite en hiver, il ne faut pas oublier que la route présente des dangers même durant la saison chaude.

« Les automobilistes font habituellement de plus longs voyages en voiture durant l'été, affirme Megan Currie, chef produit du groupe de produits pour consommateurs chez Honeywell. Afin d'éviter de tomber en panne, il est préférable de préparer son véhicule en prévision des hautes températures.

»Voici cinq conseils pour faciliter votre conduite sur la route cet été:

- Assurez-vous de vérifier les niveaux des liquides, ainsi que les courroies et les boyaux pour vous assurer qu'ils sont en bon état. Sans mettre le moteur en marche, examinez les courroies et les boyaux pour vous assurer qu'ils ne sont pas endommagés ou usés. Inspectez le niveau de l'antigel ou du liquide de refroidissement, et conditionnez-le, et si nécessaire ajoutez de l'antigel/liquide de refroidissement Prestone LongueVie. Le Prestone LongueVie est compatible avec tous les antigels/liquides de refroidissement utilisés dans n'importe quel modèle ou marque de voiture, de camionnette ou de petit camion que l'on retrouve sur la route de nos jours, qu'ils soient importés ou fabriqués ici.

- N'oubliez pas de faire changer l'huile avant le départ. Si vous prévoyez conduire à des endroits où les températures sont très chaudes, ou si votre véhicule doit tirer des items lourds comme une caravane ou des équipements de sports nautiques, il serait préférable d'utiliser une huile à moteur synthétique et d'utiliser un filtre à huile FRAM Tough Guard. Le filtre à huile Tough Guard renferme une combinaison de verre synthétique et de cellulose qui offre une véritable protection pour les conditions routières difficiles.

- Allumez vos phares s'il y a du mauvais temps. Certains éléments comme un orage, un ciel nuageux et le brouillard peuvent réduire la visibilité.

- Assurez-vous que votre système de climatisation fonctionne adéquatement. Un long voyage en voiture peut rapidement devenir insoutenable dans une automobile surchauffée. Si nécessaire, faites vérifier le système de climatisation par un technicien qualifié.

Seniors – hear this and speak up

(NC) — Seniors represent the fastest growing segment of our population, expected to make up 1/4 of the country's population. Many of these individuals are significantly affected by communication disorders and experience problems with their speech, language, swallowing and hearing. Hearing loss is the third most prevalent chronic disability among older adults and 6-12% of seniors experience speech, language or voice difficulties.

The services of speech-language pathologists and audiologists help seniors to improve their ability to communicate which allows them to optimize their health, independence, safety, socialization and overall quality of life. Speech-language pathologists provide assessment, treatment and follow-up for: difficulties speaking or understanding, voice problems, thinking and memory problems and swallowing difficulties. Audiologists provide assessment, treatment and follow-up regarding: hearing loss, balance problems, tinnitus (noises or ringing in the ears) and related disorders.

Consumers should seek the services of a qualified professional. Speech-language pathologists and audiologists are important collaborative partners in the primary health care system, working to maximize communication and, in turn, participation in the community.

Using the services of a speech-language pathologist or audiologist helps ensure seniors can continue to enjoy engaging, productive and rewarding lives. Early detection is vital! If you suspect a problem consult your yellow pages or visit the Find A Professional area of our website to find a speech-language pathologist or audiologist near you: www.caslpa.ca.
