RBC Community Partners donation helps establish a nutritional program at local school

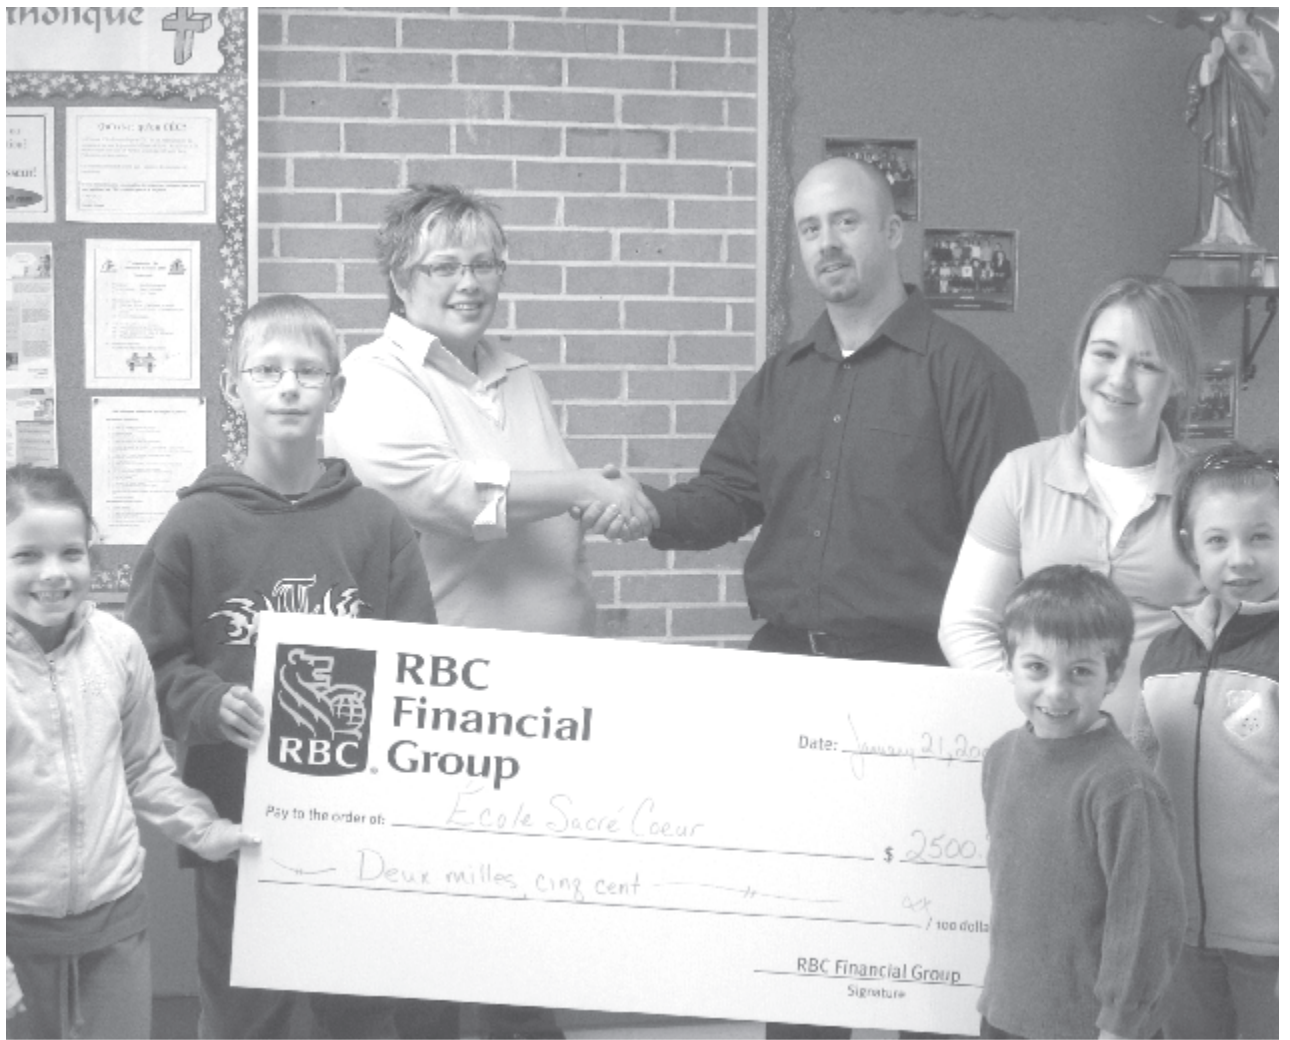

On Monday January 21st 2008, Jocelyne Bernier, Branch Manager at RBC Chapleau, presented Patrick Venne, Principal at École Sacré-Coeur and some of his students with a cheque in the amount of $2500.00 as a part of the RBC Community Partners Program.

This donation will be put towards the establishment of a nutritional program for the children at École Sacré-Coeur from Junior kindergarten through Grade 6.

On a weekly basis, teachers and RBC employees from the Chapleau branch, will volunteer their time to get together and prepare fruit and vegetable platters, and then serve them to the children. Other nutritional foods will also be purchased in order to supplement students' snacks and lunches. Le lundi 21 janvier dernier, Mme Jocelyne Bernier, gérante de la succursale de Chapleau de la Banque Royale du Canada a présenté un chèque de 2 500$ à M. Patrick Venne, directeur à l'école Sacré-Coeur et à quelques-uns de ses élèves. Cette somme fut remise afin de financer un programme de nutrition à l'école.

Ce partenariat entre l'école et la Fondation RBC permettra de faire l'achat d'aliments nutritifs pour des collations et des dîners d'élèves. En plus, des bénévoles de la Banque à Chapleau et les enseignants de l'école préparent des plateaux de fruits et de légumes pour les élèves, et ce à chaque semaine

Province funds Therapeutic clinic in Chapleau

McGuinty Government Gives Young Entrepreneur Hands-On Assistance

The Ontario government is supporting a young entrepreneur's efforts to start a therapeutic massage clinic in Chapleau.

The Northern Ontario Heritage Fund Corporation (NOHFC) is providing the Healing Hands Therapeutic

Massage Clinic with $25,000 to renovate and purchase furniture and equipment. This will be the first business in the area that has a registered massage therapist on staff. Funding is provided through the NOHFC's Young Entrepreneur Program.

"We want our youth to invest time and energy in planning new business ventures in the North," said Algoma-Manitoulin MPP Mike Brown.

"Our government has introduced funding programs to help make their dreams a reality."

"This program is not just about starting up a wide variety of businesses," said Northern Development and Mines Minister Michael Gravelle, who also chairs the NOHFC.

We have helped a wide range of health care service providers involved in everything from massage therapy to chiropractics to dentistry to set up clinics in the North." This initiative is part of the government's Northern Prosperity Plan for building stronger northern communities.

Re : Train Tickets file JCT179 FTR/ ETF:

Attention: Ms. Trianda
Barton

Dear Ms. Barton:
Two weeks prior to my departure, I ordered and received train tickets, one was dated to leave Chapleau on January 30th. The departure time indicated was 13:15...arrival time in Sudbury 18:30.

At that time, a letter accompanied my tickets and I was invited to write and share my traveling experience and It gives me the greatest of pleasure to comply.

The train from Chapleau was delayed for about an hour or so because the plumbing was frozen. So until pipes could be thawed and we had at least the use of one washroom
...we could not forge
ahead.

It was imperative that I reach Sudbury that night
since six months earlier I had booked a Caribbean cruise and had to make all my connections to reach
my final destination , Fort Lauderdale Florida, where I would board the ship.

We encountered other problems..
..the switch was frozen at Levack and the train had to back down to Cartier (which is about an hour away from Sudbury). We arrived

that night at 10:15 p.m
, cold, famished and exhausted. Thankfully the Crew was so kind and provided me with a blanket and served me a nice hot cup of tea. I admire these guys whose working conditions leave much to be desired and have to deal with discontented passengers.

I enjoyed my cruise and returned to Sudbury for the last leg of my journey. I had my return ticket dated february 12th Via 185 leaving Sudbury at 0900 and arriving in Chapleau at 13:30.

To my complete amazement and dismay , I was informed by the ticket agent at the station, that the train #185 (theBudd) would not be running because it was frozen and to top it all that no alternate transportation would be provided! In the past, that service was provided if you had purchased your ticket ahead of time.... now when did that policy change and who was made aware of it?. It came as a complete surprise to all of us who were stranded in Sudbury.

My only alternative was to spend two more days in Sudbury, pay for my meals and accommodations and wait for the next train, not guaranteed that it would be forthcoming.

Thankfully, my loving son drove the four hours from Chapleau to pick me up and four hours back that same day, since he had to work that night.

I don't know if you are aware, or if you particularly care that we have no other public transportation out of Chapleau. We have an airport but no air service nor bus service anywhere
and we call this progress?

We have to travel to Sudbury for medical appointments,
cancer treatments ,
tests etc. And like most seniors, I do not enjoy

Chapleau Wild

WILD! That was the reaction from all of the spectators to see what Chapleau's first ever cheerleading squad accomplished in such a short time. The Chapleau Wild have been training for only one month and wowed the audience with a stunt filled routine.

Coached by Ontario Cheerleading

Federation certified Manuela Michelizzi-Bott and assisted by gymnasts Alex Green and Darcy Roy, the team members delivered an amazing performance and there is much more to come.

If you missed the show I'm sure you've heard the buzz on the street. Participants range from grade six to twelve, male and female, and have worked extremely hard to learn difficult maneuvers and are only getting better.

Special thanks to Ray Portelance for his time and help during practices. Congratulations Chapleau Wild! You did a fantastic job.

Trailing isn't as simple as it looks. Yet without thinking twice, thousands of snowmobilers and other powersports enthusiasts hitch up a trailer every weekend and hit the road to tow their toys to a destination of choice. Mostly, they successfully complete their full return trip, but who knows what undue wear and tear they've caused or how close to the line they really were? The challenge is having sufficient weight rating and tow capacity — and matching the two. Often, one or more of these are deficient, and that can lead to major problems. Problems start with risking your life and not being highway legal, but also include possible insurance headaches if you're caught being illegal in a claim situation. And merely having sufficient capacity isn't good enough. Smart drivers create a safety buffer by having plenty to spare. Otherwise, you may (or may not) get by, but could be causing unnecessary wear and increasing your odds of losing control in emergency maneuvers. Caution starts with determining the maximum weight you need to tow. Obviously, this is dependent on how many toys you own and how big they are. Don't forget to consider any utility or work loads you may tow from time to time. This maximum number will determine what payload your tow vehicle has to be able to pull and how much additional safety buffer you need. The more towing and the longer the distances, the more crucial having plenty of buffer becomes.

So what about your trailer? You need to know how much your trailer weighs and that its load capacity is more than enough to accommodate the weight of your sleds and anything else you may carry in it. Double-check that its tires are rated to carry that amount of weight too and, if not, upgrade them. And don't assume that a bigger trailer automatically means you can carry more weight. Larger trailers weigh more themselves, so while more space may be available, that doesn't always translate into more weight capacity.

Once you know that your trailer is rated to carry your intended weight, and that the total weight of your trailer and sleds is acceptable from a towing perspective, you must match it with your tow vehicle. Start by reading the trailer towing section of your owner's manual. Is your vehicle recommended for towing? If so, what is its tow capacity? This manufacturer-listed specification is the maximum for everything your vehicle is rated to pull — and carry. This means the combined weight of your trailer and sleds (and fuel), plus the weight of anything being transported in your vehicle, including passengers, personal belongings and a full tank of fuel. You'd be surprised how easily this tally exceeds a vehicle's rating. Let's assume that your weight total is within specs. So you can hit the road, right? Not yet...first better check your vehicle tires. Are they rated to handle that amount of weight? Now what about your hitch? Is it rated to handle the combined weight of the trailer and all of its cargo? Also, make sure your tongue weight is under the engineered specs of the vehicle hitch and falls within the recommended range of 10% - 15% of the total trailer weight. Also make sure that your ball height allows your trailer to tow level and that the ball itself is the correct size and rated strength to handle your expected loads. If you're getting a hitch installed, make sure it's larger than the capacity you will typically need for towing. And if your new vehicle comes with a factory (or dealer installed) tow package, double check to make sure its rating is more than sufficient. In either case, a transmission cooler will help save your tow vehicle from undue wear. The preceding information is timely because authorities in many jurisdictions are stepping up inspections of trucks and trailers with tie downs, including snowmobile haulers. So be sure that you're legal and that includes using tie downs with higher rated "working load limits". Now, with proper and regular maintenance, you should be good to tow! Until next time, the Ontario Federation of Snowmobile Clubs invites you to Go Snowmobiling this status reports at winter. Check out trail ofsc.on.ca

Small business readiness

Small Business Bookkeeping

So you have the million dollar idea. You've got the location picked out and you've polished your business plan. You want to be your own boss and you're willing to work those long hours to make your business a success. One thing you might have overlooked is the money management basics of running your own business. Oops! That long life dream of yours might just go down the tubes if you haven't got a clue as to how to do your bookkeeping or how to understand your financial statements that someone else prepared on your behalf.

Before you start wheeling and dealing, it would be a good idea to brush-up on your accounting skills by taking a Small Business Bookkeeping course, given through Northern College at the Chapleau Innovation Centre, on Tuesday nights from 6:30 PM to 9:30 PM beginning March 25th and lasts for 10 weeks.

This 30 hour course will enable you to understand and to perform bookkeeping tasks such as: double entry, small business taxes, the accounting cycle, the combined journal and payroll, the sub-ledgers, special journals, general ledger and the trial balance, the work-sheet, financial statements and closing entries.

This may seem overwhelming to some, but money management basics is the most critical aspect of running a successful business.

Small Business Start-Up Seminar

Still thinking about starting your own business yet don't know exactly how to go about it?

On April 5th, the Sault Ste. Marie Enterprise Center will be in Chapleau to offer a Small Business Start-Up seminar which will consist of the following topics: finding out if you've got what it takes, the business plan, the market and the competition, should you start from scratch or buy, legal obligations and financing your start-up.

If you're interested in attending this seminar, contact Linda at the Chapleau Innovation Centre at 864.9434.

E-Business Seminar

Perhaps you haven't thought about it, but more and people choose to work from home which has many advantages such as: little or no cost in childcare, no transportation cost and the ability to establish one's own working schedule. Perhaps this type of work would fit you like a glove.

On April 5th, the Sault Ste. Marie Enterprise Centre will be in Chapleau to deliver a seminar on Selling On The Internet. This will give you the opportunity to discover how to select the level of technology best suited to your business issues associated with e-commerce.

Do you know that there are a few local people here in Chapleau that are involved in this type of work and are reaping the rewards? If you're interested in attending this seminar, all you have to do is call John Moore at 1.800.565.4507.
