Flawed MPAC system endangers Northern communities

By Andrew Schwab i t h communiti es across Northern Ontario facing property tax repayments to commercial land owners, NDP Northern Development and Mines Critic Michael Mantha called on the government today to reassessment process.

"Several weeks ago. Premier. MPAC ruled the town of Espanola must pay pulp and paper giant Domtar $4 million following a property reassessment of its Espanola mill. Domtar is one of the world's largest pulp and paper revise the MPAC companies with revenues of $5.6 billion in 2011 alone," explained Mantha.

> "When a small community such as Espanola is forced to retroactively cough up a good part of its tax base to repay a global giant such as Domtar, what is the Premier prepared to do to fix the flawed MPAC reassessment process?," asked Mantha, whose Algoma-Manitoulin riding includes Espanola.

"Although the Premier was just in the Sault for her cabinet photo op, it's clear she doesn't understand the challenges facing Northerners.

Communities such as Dryden, Elk Lake, Fort Frances, just to name a few, are watching these decisions very carefully, and they are concerned with the impact that MPAC is going to have on their communities," said Mantha.

Delivered Free to Every Household

"Residents of Espanola simply cannot afford a 50% tax increase nor to pay Domtar," said Mantha, asking, "Will the Premier commit to reviewing the reassessment process and, in particular, this devastating decision for Espanola and other communities in northern Ontario?"

Municipalities need to speak up and so do taxpayers

By Mario G. Lafreniere nce again Chapleau taxpayers will likely be facing another tax hike. Some will probably face up to a 10% increase if not more.

It is quite a feat to attempt to decipher the way that MPAC assesses properties. The taxation and assessment system is somewhat unreasonable. A new method needs to be implemented for small northern communities. It appears that there is no happy medium. Some pay too little and others pay too much. No one in Chapleau should be paying more than $4500.00 for residential taxes. Some are paying as high as $8000.00.

Higher taxes causes outmigration which in turn diminishes the revenue stream for the community.

The residents. our main revenue source, are being penalized.

It is long overdue for Northern Municipalities to speak out, loudly and firmly, to force the revamping of this inadequate municipal taxation system laden with errors responsibility to ensure that every possible angle is looked at to prevent tax increases. The competence of municipalities should by far outdo the competence of provincial governments. For one the size renders it more manageable and the elimination of red tape should, if anything, easily be eliminated.

In one case, a local taxpayer, 8 years ago, was paying $3,500.00 on a house assessed at $230, 000.00. In 2012 the house was taxed on an assessed value of $207,000.00 and the tax bill was more than $7,000.00. No rhyme nor reason.

There is a beautiful home for sale in the Port Credit area. The house is on the market for $1.3 million dollars. The annual residential taxes for the government needs to be proactive. Cost reducing measures need to be implemented immediately for the benefit of our community and its' taxpayers.

Explanations from both the Township and MPAC are needed for the citizens of Chapleau. A ratepayers association would certainly be an asset for our community.

Patrick Mulligan founds Murrays and Mulligan in 1886, serves as Chapleau postmaster, attends Sacred Heart Church, builds camp at Mulligan's Bay

S in c e th e Chapleau High School reunion, I have been working on several family histories, and will share more as they are completed. My thanks to Michael for the Mulligan story.

By Mike McMullen

In 1885, as the Canadian Pacific Railway (CPR) was constructing its main line west through northern Ontario, it began providing a monthly general store on wheels or as it was commonly called "a store car" that offered merchandise (dry goods, groceries, etc.) to those living and working along the line. The major supplier of these products was T. & W. Murray of North Bay. One of their senior clerks, Patrick Andrew Mulligan, was in charge of these Murray-supplied store cars that went to construction camps and permanent settle-

In 1886, Patrick joined in partnership with the two Murray brothers, Thomas and William, who were merchants, financiers, politicians and entrepreneurs, to purchase lots and invest in Chapleau. On one of these lots, at the northwest corner of Birch and Young streets, Patrick constructed a two-storey general store that was under construction in 1886 and fully open for business in early 1887. This store became the third permanent general store in Chapleau, following shortly after T. A. Austin & Co (mid-1886) and the Hudson's Bay Company (late-1886). Murrays and Mulligan, General Merchants, operated until 1897 when the business and the property were sold to Patrick McCool, a long-time Murrays employee and associate.

Five years later in 1902, the business was sold to Alex Langis and James Jackman and then in 1908 a change in ownership was made to Desjardins (Albert) and Langis. The following year, these partners relocated their general merchant business to the southeast corner of Lorne and Birch streets. From there, that business evolved over time into what is today Collins Home Hardware and Building Centre and Collins Home Furniture.

Following the departure of Desjardins and Langis in 1909, the Murrays and Mulligan building, 4 Birch Street W., among other uses, became the location of the Macnamera general store, a Dominion store, head office for Austin and Nicholson Lumber Company and a branch of the Bank of Montreal. The building was demolished in late 1980.

Patrick was the oldest of seven sons and two daughters born to Hugh and Mary (Griffin) Mulligan in Quyon, Quebec, a village located on the Ottawa River, west of Ottawa, now part of the Municipality of Pontiac. Like many in the Ottawa valley in the 1880s, Patrick moved up the Ottawa River on the Ontario side to places, such as Pembroke and Mattawa, and then on to North Bay and Northern Ontario as the CPR was being built. Not only was there work available with the railroad, but towns were being established and services were needed for both.

He was working in Pembroke as a store clerk in the early 1880s, when he met Julia Catherine (Kate) Flannery. They married in September 1882 at nearby Chapeau, Quebec, on Allumette Island. She was the daughter of William and Catherine (Wells) Flannery, and the family lived in the Pembroke area. Her father died at an early age leaving a wife and five young children. Willietta, a younger sister, married Thomas Mulligan, one of Patrick's brothers, also in Chapeau in August 1890. Thomas worked for Murrays and Mulligan, and his brother Patrick, as an accountant and clerk in Chapleau. A brother of Catherine's, Maurice Flannery, originally a merchant, became town treasurer and Divisional Court Clerk in North Bay. Patrick and Kate had four surviving children: Effie, William, Inez and Beatrice.

Besides managing the Murrays and Mulligan store, Patrick developed contracts with the CPR to supply the work crews between Cartier and White River and to supply the CPR restaurants at Cartier. Chapleau and White River. He built a large warehouse near the corner of Birch and Lisgar streets to service these contracts. Today, the lot where this warehouse was located.

As well, he became the town's fourth Postmaster in late 1896 (1896-1913). He followed T.A. Austin (1886-1890), J. M. Austin (1890-1892) and H. Nicholson (1892-1896). His sister-in law Winnie Flannery was the Assistant Postmaster for some time around 1900. While Postmaster, he built a small Post Office just to the east of his warehouse on Birch Street. It was the first stand-alone post office in Chapleau as all former facilities were in stores. This building would have been located where an addition was made to the original Boston Café building on Birch Street in the early 1970s. My grandfather, William McMullen, was the fifth Chapleau postmaster (1913-1919) and worked in Cont'd on P.4

Cont'd from P.3 that post office building. The Mulligans were involved in Chapleau community activities and belonged to the Roman Catholic Church. In 1909, Patrick built a new house at 49 Monk Street, which is still standing today.

At least three of Patrick's brothers worked in Chapleau at various times between 1886 and 1913. In the mid-1890s all four brothers, Patrick, Thomas Michael, John George and Charles R. were in Chapleau at the same time. Patrick and Thomas were working at Murrays and Mulligan, John was the agent for Dominion Express (later named Canadian Pacific Express) and Charles was a carpenter.

Another brother, who never lived in Chapleau, but had an impact on Chapleau, was James Edward Mulligan, my great-grandfather. Originally a storekeeper, he was working as a bailiff in North Bay in the mid-1890s when he died suddenly in December 1895. At the time, he was the father of five children aged 10 and under (three girls and two boys) and his wife, Jennie was pregnant with another daughter. In large part, because of the Mulligan presence in Chapleau, members of this family moved to Chapleau in the early $19\bar{0}0s$ and some became long-time Chapleau residents.

Three of the daughters (who were brought up Anglican by their mother) met future husbands in Chapleau and lived there for many years. May married William McMullen, Lillian married Harry Morris(NOTE: My grandmother and grandfather) and Kathleen married John Hogg. The other daughter, Nellie, did not live in Chapleau. The two sons, Griffin and Charles, worked for the CPR out of Chapleau, served in World War 1 and subsequently, moved to the United States after the war.

Patrick died in Chapleau in April 1913. Later that year, Kate sold their house to Frank Keenan and moved to North Bay with her two daughters, Inez and Beatrice. Effi, their first born child, died when she was nine years old in 1891. Their son William had left Chapleau and apparently was not actively involved in his father's business activities in Chapleau at the time of his father's death. It is likely that Kate sold most of Patrick's business ventures before she left Chapleau. However, she maintained ownership of property in Chapleau and in 1918 sold three contiguous lots on Birch Street to Hong Fong and Hong Sam. On one of these lots, Hong Fong built the Boston Café in the mid-1920s. The restaurant, now called Hongers Redwood Restaurant and Tavern, 12 Birch Street W., is still in the Hong family in 2013 with Jim Hong the owner and manager. Kate died in April 1945 in North Bay.

One would be hard pressed to find any traces of the Mulligans in Chapleau today. As far as I can determine, this line of the Mulligan family in Chapleau ended with Michael Morris, a grandson of Harry and Lillian (Mulligan) Morris. He grew up in Chapleau, worked as a journalist, then became a high school teacher and reeve in Chapleau before moving to Cranbrook, British Columbia to continue his teaching career. There is not a Mulligan street sign or a house referred to in the community as the "Mulligan House." The only legacy would be Mulligan's Bay. Family history has it that Patrick was the first to build a permanent camp on Brownlee Island (Card Island) in the 1890s and as a result the area became known as Mulligan's Bay.

A Winter Carnival Thank You

By Micheal Levesque Members of the Chapleau Leisure Committee extend a sincere "thank you" to all those who helped, in whatever capacity, with this year's Winter Carnival. By all accounts the carnival was a success: events were well attended; more meals than expected were consumed and, I understand, the Curling Club had a record bonspiel. We even offered a few new events.

The key to such success is the volunteer. Whether a member of a service club, a sports league, or as an individual, the volunteer gets things done for others to enjoy.

Some claim more should be done, a better schedule of activities should be offered. Perhaps! Change is always possible.

But every good idea is nothing unless people take the time to organize and are willing to work to realize it. We have been given many great and new ideas but, when time comes to do, the room is empty. New ideas always require more volunteers.

Which brings us to reality. Many organizations hesitate to continue annual events or to try new events because volunteers are difficult to garner. The reliables. those faces we see helping year after year, are getting older and tired. Fewer and fewer people extend themselves. That's why these Winter Carnival volunteers deserve our gratitude, despite general apathy they gave the time and made the effort to see something succeed.
