Chapleau Elementary and Secondary School Celebrates Re-Dedication and Invites the community to a Public Open House

A Welcoming song was played by the Hand Drumming Group.

n Tuesday October 23rd, parents/ guardians, community members and guests were invited to join staff, students and Algoma District School Board (ADSB) senior administration at the rededication and public open house for the Chapleau Elementary and Secondary School. The school was renovated and upgraded over the summer and now comfortably accommodates the 201 Junior Kindergarten (JK) to Grade 12 students in a learning environment that meets the needs of all grade levels.

Held over the lunch hour to accommodate as many community members as possible, the open house gave visitors a chance to tour the school and see first hand some of the upgrades. Welcome enjoying about the comments were provided by Secondary Principal Ross Hryhorchuk and Elementary Principal Lorrie Morley and were followed by a hand drumming group who provided a Welcoming Song for the assembly.

Presentations and speeches repeatedly emphasized the opportunities that are available in the school for all grade levels. The hand drumming group for instance is made up of students from JK through to Grade 12. This is one of the great advantages of having a JK-12 school. Students are able to begin activities at an early age and are able to develop and grow whether it be in arts, sports or academics.

Through the Eyes of a Student was a highlight of the celebration as students shared what they were most newly renovated school. Primary students Nina and Samantha were excited about the brand new playground for the primary grades which is situated right outside the JK/SK and Grade 1/2 classrooms. The young students have a sandbox and plenty of green space to run and play, all safely fenced They also talked about how nice it is to see their older family members in the same building. Grade 8 student Jordan spoke honestly about how he initially was nervous about moving to the high school. However he has had only positive experiences and was able to say earnestly that he has discovered that "...change is change and change is strength." Grade 9 student Cody looks forward to waking up and going to school each day because "...the school is amazing, it never gets dull and the students and staff are so friendly." Grade 11 student Kassie said she appreciates the part she gets to play as a positive role model for the younger students. "The younger students now have people to look up to and I think the high school students are doing an excellent job of showing parents from the Chapleau Public School that we are responsible."

The JK-12 school model is new to Chapleau and is proving to be a positive experience for students and staff. There are common areas and classrooms that all students are welcome to make use of including the aboriginal culture room, the stage and the cafetorium. of curling to Chapleau residents. Thanks to our Mayor and Council, approval has been granted for two years of five month curling seasons! Ice will be installed in early November and remain until the end March for the 2012-13 and 2013-14 seasons. This multi-year curling Pierrette Noel, Secreapproval allows the club to attract larger Regional bonspiels to our community, benefiting both the club, and the businesses of Chapleau.

The Curling Club executive consists of Kevin Lindquist, President, Claude Noel, Past President, Pam Morin, Vice-President, tary/ Treasurer, Terry

Legge, Ice Coordinator, and Brenda Lindquist, Canteen/Bar Manager. The objective this year is to encourage new curlers to the Club through curling clinics, a Little Rocks program, high school curling, and a seniors club. An application has also been made for equipment upgrades to the club. Social Friday curling is planned once bership fees will be a month.

This year's curling season begins the week of November 12th with free evening curling and coaching. A free bonspiel will follow on November 16 & 17th, with regular Monday and Wednesday evening curling starting November 19th. More information regarding mem-

When we See You Again

As I sit here and wonder how things would have turned out, Not to have been part of your life was there ever a doubt.

I would see you again, just didn't know when. A long time has passed, wondering how you have been. Just to see your face one last time is something I never would have thought,

You have been on my mind all this time, something that I had always and never forgot. The lessons that I learned from you, made each day more pleasant,

Your teachings of everyday life were such a warm and needed present. I leave you now knowing you are safe in his arms,

No more pain or suffering, away from all harm. Rest with the angels, until we all will see you once more. We love and have missed you, things we will always adore.

Watch over us now, for one day it will come. When we are laughing and talking and having oh so much fun. We miss you mom, but we are glad that you made it home.

We wouldn't have wanted it any other way even if it meant for us to be alone.

Lovingly remembered by Raymond, Ellen and Michael Remembering You...

House lights dim, children cheer and King George V Jubilee movie starring Laurel and Hardy begins at Regent Theatre in 1935

Chapleau

In 1935 in the midst of the Great Depression, the King George V Jubilee movie at the Regent Theatre in Chapleau was a success, according to George Tremblay in his wonderful book about the movies, 'Break at Nine'.

Mr. Tremblay, who was born and raised in Chapleau, and later became a movie projectionist, starts his book by sharing the story with the lasting impression of a visit to the theatre with schoolchildren to mark the 25th anniversary of George V as king.

"The great day had finally arrived. It was June 1935 and my home town was celebrating King George V's silver jubilee. Most Canadians took rightful pride in the fact that they were part of the great British empire... King George had been their king during the dark days of the great war seventeen years earlier (World War I) and he and his consort, Queen Mary, had inspired the deep affection of their people," Mr. Tremblay wrote.

In those days to celebrate such an event it was customary to give school children a holiday and a ticket for a free show at the local movie house.

His mother sent George, nine at the time, off to the separate school he attended on Pine street where Cedar Grove Lodge is now, where all the children were being assembled to walk to the theatre, located in the building where the Royal Bank

"Full of excitement and anticipation, I joined my mates in our classroom."

Finally, his teacher arose from her desk and proceeded to hand out the "bright red tickets' which indicated they would be attending the first show, while his older brother Noel, in a higher grade would be given a blue ticket for a later showing.

Off they went with George keeping " a firm grip on my precious red ticket as I trotted off with my classmates" forming an "impressive line of little people" on their way to the movie.

Although it was a relatively short walk he noted some distractions along the way to occupy their interest.

At the corner of Birch and Lansdowne street across from the present Bargain Shop was

Mrs. Moseley's convalescent home for injured workers with its colourful display of crossed Union Jacks or Canadian Ensign flags and wide red, white and blue bunting festooned from pillar to pillar on her verandah.

I recall the colourful displays on her verandah when I was a youngster in Chapleau in the 1940s.

Mr. Tremblay noted that such displays of loyalty to the Crown were not uncommon in those days. As they passed Collins and Matters department store, now Collins Home Furniture, they saw an entire front showcase with large framed photos of King George and Queen Mary. He added: "Charles Collins, one of the owners of the store, was a World War I returned veteran and his partner, Fred Matters, was an English immigrant and there was no hesitation on their part in displaying their loyalty."

Arriving at the theatre, there was a large crowd present, and an open area between the front of the crowd and theatre door. He was too small to see but then heard the sound of marching feet, and by looking down at ground level,

he saw the "putteed

At first, he thought it was soldiers but then realized it was members of 1181 Chapleau High School Cadet Corps that he would eventually join several years later.

Reading Recovery program expanded

Amanda McCabe, Huron-Superior Catholic District School Board Reading Recovery Teacher Leader, shows Our Lady of Fatima Catholic School Grade 1 teacher Lina DiPasquale, the text level materials she will use during a Reading Recovery intervention.

The Huron-Superior Catholic District School Board has expanded the reach of its Reading Recovery program for the 2012-2013 school year. The Reading Recovery program was implemented in Sault Ste. Marie schools last year and the response has been very positive. This year the program has arrived at H-SCDSB schools in Elliot Lake, Blind River, Espanola, Massey, Wawa, Chapleau, White River and Hornepayne.

Reading Recovery is a highly effective short-term intervention of one-toone tutoring for grade one students who struggle with the complex set of concepts that make reading and writing possible. The intervention is most effective when it is available to all students who need it and is used as a supplement to good classroom teaching.

"This initiative has already made an impact. The teachers are seeing positive results and based on parent feedback we feel Reading Recovery was the right program to put in place in our schools. Last year's roll out of the program was a huge success and we are confident it will be of great benefit for our district schools as it pertains to short term and long term student success," said Superintendent of Education Maria Esposito.

In Reading Recovery, individual students receive a halfhour lesson each school day for 12 to 20 weeks with a specially trained Reading Recovery teacher. As soon as students can meet gradelevel expectations and demonstrate that they can continue to work independently in the classroom, their lessons are discontinued, and new students begin individual instruction.

Professional development is an essential part of Reading Recovery, utilizing a three-tiered approach that includes teachers, teacher leaders, and trainers. Professional development for all Reading Recovery teacher leaders begins with an academic year of graduate-level study and continues in subsequent years. With the support of the teacher leader, Reading Recovery teachers develop observational skills and a repertoire of intervention procedures tailored to meet the individual needs of at-risk students.

"The teachers involved last year were very pleased with how this initiative was implemented. There was comprehensive training and follow up throughout the school year by Reading Recovery Lead Teacher Amanda McCabe. made the entire process easy to comprehend and put into action," said Elementary Curriculum Co-coordinator Denise Colizza.

There are two positive outcomes for students participating in Reading Recovery.

Approximately 75% of students who complete the full 12 to 20-week intervention can meet grade-level expectations in reading and writing. Students who are still having difficulty after a complete intervention are recommended for further evaluation. Recommendations may be made for future classroom support, resource support or referral to an individual education plan.

"This program is giving Board administrators, teachers and parents, the tools to play an integral part in the future success of these young learners.

Student literacy is what we all strive for and Reading Recovery is showing that it allows for that goal to be achieved, said Esposito.

The goal of Reading Recovery is to dramatically reduce the number of first-grade students who have extreme difficulty learning to read and write, to reduce the cost of these learners to the education system and to ensure student success from an early age. For more information on Reading Recovery go to the Huron-Superior Catholic District School Board website at www.hscdsb.on.ca.

Be Flu Wise . . . Immunize!

The Sudbury & District Health Unit has launched its annual flu immunization campaign to make sure that people can protect themselves and those around them during the upcoming influenza season. The campaign kicked off on Saturday, October 20, with a clinic from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. at the Chelmsford Community Centre/Arena.

"The Sudbury & District Health Unit has scheduled a number of free community clinics throughout the districts of Sudbury and Manitoulin," said Lisa Schell, Manager of Clinical Services. "Check your local newspaper or the Health Unit's website for dates, times, and locations of clinics in your area."

People can also get a flu shot free of charge at participating walk-in clinics, community health centres, pharmacies or from their health care provider.

People of all ages can become ill with influenza. While most people suffer only mild symptoms, influenza can cause more severe complications including ear infections, pneumonia, and even death. "The elderly, those with chronic medical conditions, and children between the ages of six months and 5 years of age are at a higher risk for developing complications," said Schell. It is also important for those capable of transmitting and even death. "The influenza to individuals elderly, those with chronic medical flu shots to reduce the conditions, and chil-

school students like the Student Success Room and the enlarged secondary classroom (which used to be two regular sized classrooms). And there are classrooms designed just for younger students including the primary wing with washrooms and play areas designated just for these youngsters.

The combined elementary and secondary office area is ideal for allowing Principals, Vice Principals and office staff to be centrally located and central to building the JK-12 community. Secondary Principal Hryhorchuk extended his thank you to the Ministry of Education for recognizing the urgency of the situation 2 years ago and for helping to create a place "...where good things happen and everyone has a place."

Parent representatives including School Council Chair Dan Williams and Transition Committee member Michelle Martineau, thanked ADSB for the opportunity to participate in both the transition planning and the developing of the concept of a JK-12 school. They appreciated being kept well informed and spoke of the consultation between school, parents and community and how there was a collective voice at the table as decisions were made. They voiced their appreciation particularly for the staff of Chapleau Elementary and Secondary schools for all they have done to ensure a smooth and safe transition for all students.

Director of Education Lucia Reece and Board Chair Jennifer Sarlo also expressed their thanks to parents, students, staff, members of the First Nations community, principals and the Mayor of Chapleau. These groups provided input to administration on areas such as transportation, social interaction amongst JK-12 students, renovations, and layout of the school to accommodate all students. This was an invaluable resource for ADSB administration. Director Reece emphasized the TEAM acronym "Together Everyone Achieves More" and expressed her appreciation to all who shared a common vision of bring the school to fruition.

Consultants Elliot Engineering, Met Engineering, ACE Contracting, construction company Quinan Construction and Phillips Haulage were also applauded for their work in completing the indoor and outdoor renovations and upgrades in such a timely fashion, almost all prior to the start of the 2012/2013 school year.

Principal Lorrie Morley captured the essence of the day in her final comment. "We have all heard the saying 'It takes a village to raise a child.' Well, I think we all know that it takes a community to move a school!"

Following the speeches and presentations, the approximately 250 students, staff and guests were invited to take part in light refreshments and to tour the school. The ADSB Regular Board Meeting followed shortly afterwards in the gymnasium. It included a performance by student Keiko Larocque who sang the song "Glitter in the Air" (by singer-songwriter Pink) as a 'fight back' to bullying. Keiko and classmate Lauryn Pellow had sung "O Canada" earlier in the day at the Rededication ceremony.

Chapleau Moments

all the commotion surrounding a large group of students being seated, they were finally ready for the start of the movie.

He gives a hint of his future career as a projectionist when he notes by observing the upper part of the back wall he could see a small, dark figure moving behind the little portholes in the wall.

The figure seemed to be adjusting something when, suddenly, 'the house lights dimmed. The children let out a tremendous cheer of glee!. The show was finally starting."

Young George was "completely entranced by the new living world being revealed" to him as he saw the "dazzling burst of light shoot out from one of the smaller round portholes" but the highlight of his afternoon was yet to come.

The screen was taken over by the two hilarious comedians of the day -- Stan Laurel and Oliver Hardy. The movie was 'Towed in a Hole", (1932) which Mr. Tremblay says was their best classic short movie.

"Their every gesture invited laughter. They were a pair of very talented comedians and performers who entranced my generation for many years". (And mine, too!)

Mr. Tremblay also reminded his readers that Laurel and Hardy also brought a bit of laughter to the older folks of those days at a time when they needed it most, for it was the time of the Great Depression.

"The King George V Jubilee movie had been a success! It had created an impression that would last me a lifetime," Mr. Tremblay wrote. He became a movie projectionist.

'Break at Nine' by George Tremblay is a great read. Mr. Tremblay kindly sent me a copy some years ago, and I keep returning to it for more moments from his life and the movie industry. My email is mj.morris@live.ca

Valeur de l'accueil

L'accueil est important pour établir un climat de confiance et d'appartenance à un groupe. Les élèves de L'École secondaire catholique Trillium ont vécu la valeur de l'accueil tout au long du mois de septembre. Les élèves méritants d'un certificat pour la valeur de l'accueil sont : Renay Bernier (10e année), Jérémy Poulin (7e année), Matraca Chiasson (8e année), Mathieu Perreault (11e année), Holli Canning (12e année) et Jessica Dionne (9e année). Félicitations à tous!
