Maison Boreal Home to create economic impact in Chapleau

Committee members of the Maison Boreal Home made a presentation to Mayor Byham and council at the September 10th council meeting outlining the benefits that their project would bring to the community.

The senior citizen housing project, in addition to providing a much needed supportive facility for seniors, is an economic development project that is supported by the Township of Chapleau.

The Maison Boreal Home initiative will increase economic activity, especially as it relates to community sustainability, job creation, and the capacity to retain and attract wealth to Chapleau and the Superior East Region.

According to Doreen Cachagee keeping seniors in Chapleau makes good business sense. The proposed facility will create jobs and local spending during the construction phase and will create jobs during the operational phase. In total, 6 to 8 full-time jobs and 5 part-time jobs in Chapleau will be created.

Keeping seniors in town decreases the migration out of the Superior East region. This has an impact on our tax base and increases funding for the maintenance of basic infrastructure as well as the availability of services.

Revitalization of our community's downtown core is another important factor. The preferred site for the residence is a downtown location. Seniors want to remain at the heart of the community in walking distance from the amenities.

Senior citizens are a growing segment of the market, and are more likely to shop locally thereby supporting our local businesses.

Travelling out of town by friends and family to visit their loved ones would be eliminated.

Keeping Chapleau dollars in Chapleau is primordial. Chapleau's economy is strengthened by lessening the need to travel elsewhere to visit senior family members. Not only is it expensive to do so, but it also has a negative effect on Chapleau's economy. Small businesses suffer as residents are inclined to complete the majority of their shopping while out of town.

An increase in visitor traffic would help the stores, motels, and restaurants. Maison Boreal Home residents will be visited by out-of-town family members who are likely to spend locally.

Chapleau could become a regional centre for transitional living care, and enhance what the region has to offer. It would make Chapleau more attractive to potential investors, newcomers, tourists, and business investors.

With a project such as the Maison Boreal Home economic benefits to this community would certainly be forthcoming and with a stronger economy, Chapleau would become a better place to live.

In 2011, the Chapleau Business Retention and Expansion (BR+E) project identified that small businesses in Chapleau employ more than 282 people with full- or part-time jobs.

This is a significant segment of Chapleau's total workforce. As a comparison, the Tembec sawmill, one of Chapleau's two largest industries, employs approximately 200 people.

From the BR+E, we learned that small businesses have a vital role to play in the economy of the community, perhaps a greater role than anticipated.

In Chapleau, seniors are a growing segment of the population, and therefore, represent an increasing segment of Chapleau's consumers.

Seniors support local business. By circumstance, most have limited opportunities for out-of-town shopping.

Keeping seniors in Chapleau makes good business sense. It safeguards the existing 282 jobs, supports the growth of existing businesses, and encourages new businesses to develop.

Chapleau Village Shops to hold special event as part of 25th Anniversary

As part of the 25th Anniversary Celebration, Chapleau Village Shops will be hosting a special event on October 3, 2012. Mr. Marc Lafrance will be at our store and will be bringing the latest Canadian designed, Canadian manufactured top quality cloth coats, leathers and furs.

Lafrance Furs has been in existence for over 100 years, having started out in Chapleau in 1908.

The cloth coats will be available in various lengths and styles and if necessary can be ordered in different sizes and colours. There will be an assortment of leathers and furs as well. Mr. Lafrance will also be available to remodel and rejuvenate any fur you may already own, but are tired of the look.

The road to the world's first national Aboriginal television network

Original People. Original Television. The Launching of the Aboriginal Peoples Television Network tells the inside story of how the world's first national Aboriginal TV network came into being. For nearly a century, Aboriginal people in film and television were either victims, villains, or vanquished. All that suddenly changed in 1999, when Canadians were introduced to the world's first national Aboriginal TV network, created by and reflecting the world of First Nations, Inuit and Métis.

Jennifer David was APTN's first Director of Communications, and was there through the tumultuous few years leading up to the creation of APTN. She began by conducting more than 30 interviews, sifting through old corporate documents and watching archival videos. Jennifer has woven together a story of some of the people whom had a dream. Their dream embarked them on a journey from early satellite experiments in Northern Canada to new ways of telling community stories through video and to the launch of Television Northern Canada. In less than 10 years, the culmination of this dream resulted in the launch of APTN. "Ms. David's book not only recognizes the hard work and efforts of so many people who devoted their time to see APTN come to life, it educates, it captures a vital story, one that played an important role in getting the network to where it is today. It is a story of perseverance by many individuals who followed a vision and made it come to life." – Jean LaRose, Chief Executive Officer of APTN.

Jennifer David is the daughter of Buddy and Bunny Swanson of Chapleau.

MERCI

Nous tenons a remercier tous ceux et celles qui ont offert des messes, des fleurs, des dons et apporté de la nourriture lors du décès de notre mère. Un merci tout spécial au Père Sébastien Groleau pour ses nombreuses visites auprès de notre mère, au personnel des soins de longue durée pour les soins spéciaux dont elle avait grandement besoin. Un gros merci a Nancy et la chorale, ce fut grandement apprécié. Le repas après le service prépare par le comité des funérailles nous a réchauffé le cœur.

THANK YOU

We wish to thank everyone for the masses, flowers, donations and food during our bereavement. We appreciate the staff at LTC for that special care and attention our mother so greatly needed during her stay. Sincere thanks go to Father Sébastien Groleau for his kindness and numerous visits; also to Nancy and the choir for sharing their talent and time with us. The meal after the service prepared by the Funeral Committee sure warmed up our hearts.

Chapleau a busy place on many fronts enjoyed 'banner year' with approvals given projects, and others completed in 1972

Chapleau Moments

by Michael J. Morris

Forty years ago as 1972 drew to a close, it seems like Chapleau had been a busy place on many fronts with Maggie Costello calling it a "banner year" for the community.

Approval had been received to replace the horseshoe bridge with a new one plus a pedestrian overpass, and the Ontario Municipal Board had approved a new water treatment plant, a subject of much debate and controversy for many years. Planning was also underway for a landfill disposal site to replace the town dump.

The geared-to-income housing project on Pine Street had been completed, but in the process, the Convent of the Sisters of Ste. Marie, built in 1928, was torn down to make room for it.

Expansion of Chapleau Public School had been substantially completed with only a slight disruption in classes at the start of the school year, and by year end, classes had been moved from the old Chapleau High School to the main school building. Work had also begun on expansion of Our Lady of Fatima Roman Catholic Separate School.

At Chapleau High School, there were more than 400 students, a record. An addition had been completed in 1971 The school had opened in 1966.

On the sports scene, the Chapleau Junior "B" Huskies of the International Junior "B" League had an outstanding year winning eight of 13 league trophies and having Earle Freeborn named Coach of the Year by the league.

During the year, 96 building permits were issued for work valued at $1,707,625 including a new business office for Wesmak Lumber Co. Ltd. on Pine Street and the Northern Pottery plant on Highway 129 as well as new ski chalet.

Service clubs were active with the Chapleau Rotary Club giving great support to the Crippled Children's Fund, its main project, while the Chapleau Lions Club brought the CNIB Mobile Eye Unit to town.

Branch Number 5 of the Royal Canadian Legion conducted the annual Remembrance Day service as well as its annual Safety Week.

The Chapleau Boy Scouts and Girl Guides under the leadership of Manlio Spessot and Valerie Jackson, respectively, hosted a rendezvous at Wakami Lake Provincial Park with about 500 in attendance.

Under the auspices of the Opportunities for Youth Program there was a very successful summer carnival and other projects, all under the direction of Tom Corston, who was a student at Lakehead University at the time.

There was also a successful Chapleau Winter Carnival.

Fire chief Adam Andrews reported there were no major fires in town or in outlying areas serviced by the local fire department. The Ministry of Natural Resources reported there were only 12 forest fires with only 35 acres burned, perhaps a record low.

The Lady Minto Hospital Building Fund grew from about $150,000 to over $248,000 as a result of an aggressive fund drive. Approval was received from the Ministry of Health to proceed with plans for a new hospital.

Under the presidency of Helen Tebbutt, the Lady Minto Hospital Auxiliary was one of the largest contributors to the building fund, plus making a pledge for more fund raising.

Chamber of Commerce president Matt Castonguay reported that it continued its active promotion of Chapleau and cooperation with the municipality on projects.

Just for the historical record, the Chapleau Midget "B" hockey team I was coaching made it to the NOHA Finals in Capreol, but were overwhelmed by their opponent. Garry Prusky, who was the team manager, and who was also playing for the Chapleau Junior "B" Huskies and I had some great laughs reminiscing about "the Midgets" at the Chapleau High School Reunion.

George Evans, assistant principal at Chapleau High School, who arrived in 1961, returned from a one year sabbatical, which had included a visit to his beloved Greece. George also resumed his duties as staff advisor to the school chess club.

Rev. Murray Arnill who had been a very popular minister at Trinity United Church for several years and active in many aspects of community life, moved to Kapuskasing. Murray had also established a coffee house in the church basement for the community's youth and it was the place to be on weekends -- for teachers and others too! The coffee house would often continue into the wee hours of the morning around Murray's kitchen table.

In the 1972 municipal election, Terry Way-White was re-elected reeve while F.A. 'Nick' Card, Dr. G.E. Young, Ernie Gilbert -- and me -- were elected to council.

I am always open to ideas for Chapleau Moments columns so please do not hesitate to contact me, and thanks to all those who have. My email is mj.morris@live.ca

How to plan your business's growth

Beat the competition with disciplined expansion

Say you have a successful small business. You have a few employees, and things are going fine. If you're like many entrepreneurs, you may never take time to sit down and think about your future growth—how to take your company to the next level in a smart, disciplined way. But growth is an issue many business owners ignore at their peril. In fact, it might just be one of the most important issues facing them as entrepreneurs. “If you decide not to grow, you may be paving a path to failure,” says Patrick Latour, Senior Vice President,

Financing and Consulting at the Business Development Bank of Canada. “If you don't grow, your competitors will, and that will put pressure on you.”

The good news, Latour says, is that business owners can create a road map to guide them and reduce their risk as they grow their enterprise. The road map can help them find more growth opportunities and avoid common mistakes, like failing to delegate responsibility to employees (see below).

Need a Plan

To develop your road map, start by committing time to outlining a plan for your growth, Latour says. It should include a few important basics: A clear picture of your business's current strengths, weaknesses and opportunities

A vision for where you want your company to be in the next three to five years. An action plan to achieve your vision (Who will do what and by when)

Your growth plan could be anything from a rough, informal sketch to a full-blown, highly detailed strategic plan, including everything from a mission statement to scenario planning and financial forecasts.

What's vital is getting the key players in your company on the same page, thinking about your future.

“If you're going to grow, you should absolutely have a plan,” says Paul Cubbon, who teaches entrepreneurship and innovation at the University of British Columbia's Sauder School of Business. “Failing to plan is planning to fail.”

Latour agrees. “The plan doesn't have to be pages and pages long. Sometimes the simpler, the better. But if you don't have a planned, disciplined approach to growth, you're probably going to make more mistakes.”

Regaining Control

Christopher Moreno is a firm believer in creating a growth plan—and following it with discipline. His event planning and production business, 365 Productions, was growing so quickly in 2011 that he and partner Ben Patience worried it was spinning out of control.

“We were concerned about having too many things on the conveyor belt,” Moreno says. “We said: ‘Eventually the conveyor belt is going to be full, and something is going to fall off the end.’”

The duo decided to embark on a strategic planning exercise. The process helped clarify their opportunities, risks and respective roles in the company. The result: a detailed five-year plan that included financial forecasts for three different growth scenarios.

The plan helped them boost sales to an expected $3.2 million this year from $1.8 million in 2010. They have even exceeded their goals, meeting their year-three targets in 18 months. And the plan has helped guide a successful international expansion into Britain and Australia.

Along the way, they made sure to meet regularly with employees to see if the plan needs any tweaking and check how their plan is being implemented by measuring progress against their benchmarks. “The plan is 10% of the work; the other 90% is actually doing it,” Moreno says. “If you don't get in the car and drive, the roadmap is useless.”

NEW FROM THE PARK BY Mike Mantha
 Provincial Member of Parliament for Algoma-Manitoulin

The Ontario legislature has only been back a couple of weeks and already we've seen some significant changes. On Thursday September 6, the NDP blocked a Liberal majority with an unprecedented win in the Kitchener-Waterloo by-election. Premier McGuinty engineered the by-election by appointing Elizabeth Witmer, the Conservative MPP, to a $188,000-a-year post as head of the Workplace Safety and Insurance Board, convincing her to give up the seat she'd held for 22 years. Voters in Kitchener-Waterloo were not fooled by Liberal antics and their cynical attempt to gain a de facto majority government; instead, they elected NDP candidate Catherine Fife, a well-known local leader who earned a whopping 40% of the vote. The people of Kitchener-Waterloo chose positive change.

years Catherine served as the Waterloo Region School Board Trustee and Chair, where she balanced a $675 Million dollar budget and created 1600 childcare spaces at no cost to the taxpayers. She has delivered positive results time and time again for the people in her community. Myself and my NDP colleagues are proud to have someone of her caliber joining us at Queen's Park strengthening our caucus.

The results of this by-election sent a clear message to the McGuinty Liberals; the people of Ontario did not give them a majority mandate last October. Ontarians want their elected representatives to work together in the interest of everyone, not just the boardroom CEO's and executives. The Legislature was also called back early to push through the hotly contested Bill 115- Putting Students First Act. Teachers unions and civil liberties groups were outraged by this Bill which infringes on collective bargaining rights by giving the Minister and Cabinet the power to remove terms of a negotiated collective agreement. We have spoken out clearly against the ill-advised strategy of issuing ultimatums, negotiating in public, refusing to discuss reasonable proposals from teachers, and threatening teachers with back to work legislation. In addition, we have fought against the McGuinty decision to cut spending on education by half a billion dollars in the last budget. On September 11th, Bill 115 passed in the Legislature with the support of the Tories and the Liberals.

I want to thank the constituents of Algoma-Manitoulin for hosting me in countless events in your communities throughout the summer; it was truly an enjoyable few months. I also want to thank you for your patience as we are still transitioning to a new location in Elliot Lake. As always, please feel free to contact my office about this issue, or any other provincial matters. You can reach my constituency office by email at mmantha-co@ndp.on.ca or by phone at 705-461-9710/1-800-831-1899.

Businesses need to know about Canada's new anti-spam law

NC)—The Parliament of Canada passed a new anti-spam law in December 2010, which is expected to come into force next year.

Once this legislation is in force, it will:

- Help reduce unwanted emails from appearing in consumers' inboxes by requiring companies to gain their consent to receive commercial electronic messages; and
- Protect businesses and consumers alike by helping deter the most damaging and deceptive forms of spam or other electronic threats from occurring in Canada.

When the new law is in force, it will prohibit:

- Sending commercial electronic messages, including messages to email addresses and text messages to a cell phone, without the recipient's express or implied consent;

- Installation of computer programs on another person's computer system without the express consent of the owner of the computer system or its agent, such as an authorized employee;
- Use of false or misleading electronic representations in the promotion of products, services or business interests;
- Collection of personal information through accessing a computer system in violation of federal law (e.g. the Criminal Code of Canada); and

- Collection of electronic addresses by the use of computer programs or the use of such addresses, without permission, a practice known as address harvesting.

The federal government has set up a website, www.fightspam.gc.ca. This site posts information about spam and other electronic threats, including definitions, frequently asked questions about the law, and tips for protecting your computer and email accounts.

We also offer support to women who live in the communities of Chapleau, White River, Dubreuilville, and Hornepayne through our Outreach Program. Our Outreach Worker travels to those communities to meet with women who need emotional support as well as information about their rights and options. If you need to speak with the Outreach Worker when she is in your community, you can call the Centre at any time to set up an appointment. You do not need to be a resident of the Centre in order to use our services. If you need someone to talk to or if you just need someone to listen, call our Toll Free Crisis line at 1-800-461-2242 or you can drop in at the Centre. We are here for you.

World's BEST Cream

The only thing you have to lose is pain!

Why wear a copper bracelet when you can wear a copper based skin moisturizer? For thousands of years copper has been recognized for its many health benefits, from increasing energy levels to reducing pain associated with swelling, inflammation and arthritis.
