Remembrance

Lest We

By André Paquette
Provincial President

Each year we gather together in groups or individually depending on our belief and reasons for partaking in the annual Remembrance Day celebrations. We all have our personal reasons why we pay our respects on this very important day of the year, and quite possibly I might add, one of the most important in my opinion.

At 11:00 hours all comes to a standstill across this country and in accordance with the respective time zones.

Even the two great railways Canadian Pacific and the Canadian National bring all of the trains whether on the main line, branch line or in the yard to a complete stop and observe the two minutes of silence before letting out one long blast of the whistle and then continuing on its journey to their respective destinations.

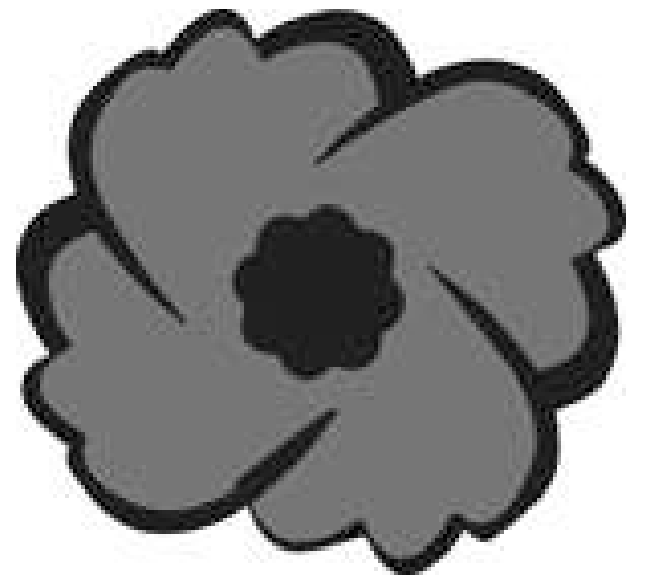

For those who were a part of the fabric that made this country what it is today, they understand the need and the reasoning why we carry out this tradition every year. I do not believe that in lieu of the short time it takes to hold our individual services that this tradition is too much to ask for when we consider how many have paid the supreme sacrifice so that we may live the free life we live today. Whether during war time, peace time, special duty time or even as recently as Afghanistan the loss of a comrade, is the loss of a comrade.

On Remembrance Day let us remember all those who have paid the supreme sacrifice, those we have lost since their return from far away wars, those who could not be with us today due to illness or too weak to attend outdoor services. For those who are with us this day see how they still stand as tall as they can and proudly salute both Queen and Country. They carry a pride that may never be matched again.

As members of the Royal Canadian Legion this is the one tradition that must never cease. It is our duty that this tradition carries on with the respect and dignity it so rightly deserves.

 We want to tell you something,

Chapleau Moments

by
Michael J. Morris

I was telling my good friend Derik Hodgson about the Chapleau High School 90th anniversary reunion festival recently, and, as always, in the 46 years since we first met at the Kingston Whig-Standard as young reporters, he had a great line that summed it all up and caused me to reflect on the "town book" of Chapleau.

Derik, one of Canada's best investigative reporters of my generation, observed that people in cities, don't always understand what reunions at "old-tyme high schools mean to smaller centres....they are often the binding that holds the town book together."

What a great line, among the many that I have seen Derik write, and immediately I started to think about how CHS reunions are the binding that does hold the history of Chapleau together -- at least from 1922 on when the high school doors first opened.

A school reunion gives us something in common, memories of a shared experience before we were all grown up and headed off in different directions to lead our adult lives. The reunion brings us home again as part of the binding that holds the town book together.

Over the years, whenever two or three of us meet who attended CHS, invariably the conversation turns to school days and memories of the students, teachers and activities that made up so much of our high school life. Today we even have virtual meetings by email, or Skype, Twitter and Facebook, but come 2012 it will be the real thing, and once home, stories will be told and while much regret will be expressed over those who are no longer here, the emphasis will be on those things that bring folks together, centred on life either at the "old" school on Pine Street or the "new" school on the hill.

It just struck me that the new school has now served the community longer than the old school, and many more students have attended it than ever went to the building on the banks of the river.

In my life I have been most fortunate to have attended CHS as a student and to have returned and taught there for almost 20 years. But in fact, like many of Chapleau's old families, my connection goes back almost to the beginning of the high school in Chapleau in 1922. For example my mother, Muriel E. (Hunt) Morris and her sister Elsie (Hunt) Zufelt were students there in the late 1920s while my father Jim Morris and some cousins attended in the 1930s, his sister Marion by 1940, and other cousins in the late 1940s early 1950s, then me, and then more cousins through the years. Our family history, perhaps like yours, is tied in to the school.

Chapleau High School 90th Anniversary Reunion: "The binding that holds the town book together"

When CHS celebrated its 60th anniversary in 1982, I wrote an article about the changes to the physical face of Chapleau that would have occurred since many who came home for the reunion would immediately notice.

It was called 'Yes Virginia, there is a Chapleau', and details Virginia's walk around town after an absence of 30 years. Here are some of the highlights from her walkabout. With apologies to the 'Virginia' in the Christmas classic, 'Yes Virginia, there is a Santa Claus'.

She noted that here it was the sixtieth anniversary of her school, and they had moved it "into the bush" and it was one of "those modern buildings all on one floor."

Virginia was especially concerned about where students drank their beer, for according to the old song "Give a shout, give a cheer for the boys who drink the beer in the cellars of old Chapleau High" and now there was no cellar.

The Lady Minto Hospital had disappeared and "they put the hospital out behind the high school. Am I ever glad they also built a new road to serve these buildings. When I was a kid there was nothing more than a trail. And sometimes it was impassable in the Spring".

She also noted the "new" Chapleau Civic Centre, Cedar Grove Lodge Chapleau, Recreation Complex, water plant, and of course the replacement of the horseshoe bridge with a new bridge and pedestrian overpass, among other changes. Yes, the physical face of Chapleau changed dramatically in the 1970s -- more than 30 years ago. And, of course there have been more changes since.

However, after her walk about, 'Virginia' accepted that while the physical face of Chapleau changed, "... the greatest resource of Chapleau has always been its people. I look forward to seeing all my old friends, those who are still here and those who have come for the reunion. I am simply glad to be home where it all began for me", and I added, "Yes Virginia, there is a Chapleau. The physical face has changed, but not the hearts of the people."

I wrote Virginia's story almost 30 years ago now for the souvenir newspaper marking the CHS 60th reunion, and was living in Chapleau at the time and teaching at the high school. I have not changed my view one bit about the community and its people.

Let me go back to Derik Hodgson for a moment and give him the last word. At one time Derik worked for Canadian Press and came to know Lloyd 'Sparrow' McDonald, who was with CP for many years, born in Chapleau, graduated from Chapleau High School, served in the Royal Canadian Air Force in World War II, and was awarded the Distinguished Flying Cross.

Here is Derik's comment on one of Chapleau's greatest resources: "Lloyd McDonald. Legendary. Remember him working the rim at CP Toronto. Gruff. No nonsense and wonderful."

Small world. Thanks Derik for helping me share a bit about the binding that holds the town's book together! My email is mj.morris@live.ca

Women's shelters serve a critical role

(NC)—Every year, 360,000 children watch as their mothers are abused and, in Canada, half of all women will experience at least one incident of physical or sexual violence in their lifetime.* The Canadian Women's Foundation estimates that, on average, every six days, a Canadian woman is murdered by her intimate partner. Women's shelters across Canada provide women and children affected by violence with the resources they need to escape abuse and to begin to rebuild their lives.

statistics surrounding domestic violence, finding a safe haven, free from the abuser is paramount. Out of fear, or self-doubt, or both, it is often a struggle for women experiencing abuse to leave their relationships. "Abused women often feel alone," says Shanan Spencer-Brown, executive director of the Royal LePage Shelter Foundation. "However, shelters provide a confidential source of support, a place of trust and hope, where women of similar circumstances can come together, share their stories, and relate to one another."

Of course, the pathway to a new life is not complete once a woman and her children have found the courage to leave their abusive relationship. Shelter staff know that the emotional, psychological and physical effects of abuse do not disappear overnight. Therefore, most shelters offer services such as individual counseling, group counseling, parenting skills training, housing referral, employment services, and programs for children who have experienced or witnessed abuse.

Without generous donations from charitable organizations like the Royal LePage Shelter Foundation, which funds many programs and services offered through shelters, many women and children would go without help. Considering that nearly half of all women in Canada will be exposed to abuse, funding is critical.

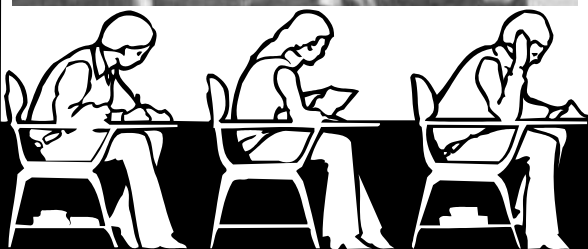

More information is available online at www.royalpage.ca/shelter or at www.canadianwomen.org.

Forest Industry Applauds Government for Promoting Canadian Wood in Asia

CNW - The Forest Products Association of Canada (FPAC) is pleased that the Minister of Natural Resources, Joe Oliver, has promoted Canadian wood frame construction as environmentally friendly and energy efficient during his trip to China.

Minister Oliver attended a ribbon-cutting ceremony marking the completion of China's first four-storey wood frame structure, a joint Canada-China project using Canadian lumber, located in the Tianjin Economic Development area.

"We appreciate this government promotion for wood construction, especially in China, by far our fastest growing export market," says Avrim Lazar, the President and CEO of FPAC. "There is no doubt that developing markets especially China and India are vital to the future prospects of Canada's forest products sector and this type of government support is critical to our future success."

Lazar, who is also in China speaking at Asia-Pacific Forestry week in Beijing, underscored the importance of the Canada Wood Export Program that has helped promote market diversification for forest products, with a focus on the Asia-Pacific region.

"With the ongoing challenges in the U.S. market, exploiting these promising markets has been a life-saver for jobs and for rural communities who rely on the health of the Canadian forest sector," says Lazar. "The government has been a vital partner in our successful market expansion."

FPAC is also delighted that the Minister of International Trade, Ed Fast, was in India this month to promote trade opportunities and encourage progress on reaching an economic partnership agreement.

Forest products are now Canada's number one sector

exporter to both India and China.

FPAC provides a voice for Canada's wood, pulp, and paper producers nationally and internationally in government, trade, and environmental affairs. The $57-billion-a-year forest products industry represents 2% of Canada's GDP and is one of Canada's largest employers operating in hundreds of communities and providing 240,000 direct jobs across the country

by Carol Hughes

Federal member of Parliament
Algoma-Manitoulin-Kapuskasing

This Remembrance Day millions of Canadians will gather at cenotaphs, community centres, Legions and Veterans halls to honour the living, remember the fallen and thank currently serving Canadian Forces (CF) and RCMP personnel. But on November 5th, for the second year in a row, veterans organized a protest against the federal government to fight for better disability benefits and more

Veterans can't be allowed to fall through the cracks support. This is a response to the way that the federal government's programs and services for veterans and their families' fall woefully short of meeting their needs.

Despite incremental improvements in recent years, our federal government has not done enough. In opposition, the Conservatives promised action to resolve the unfair reduction of veterans' disability insurance payments called SISIP, extending the Veterans Independence Program for all widows, and holding a public inquiry and fully compensating all victims of Agent Orange. Veterans are still waiting on these.

Incredibly, the federal government is now proposing to cut an estimated $226 million from Veterans Affairs Canada (VAC) and to eliminate 500 employees. These cuts could impact veterans' health care programs and services at the same time as demand is rapidly increasing for younger CF and RCMP veterans.

Now, veterans are taking political action like going on hunger strikes to get better care from the Department of Veterans Affairs, the widows of soldiers killed in Afghanistan are being denied help at home under the Veterans Independence Program. Veterans' homelessness is also on the rise and more veterans are using food banks. In Calgary, volunteers have organized a food bank specifically for veterans and their families. In 2005, it served 58 veterans and in 2010 it served over

New Democrats have made concrete recommendations to improve services including the development of new Veterans' Health Care result of OPP investigation 22-year-old Michael MCAULEY of Chapleau was charged with Theft Over $5,000 and he is to appear in Chapleau Court in December 2011 to answer to the charge.

Cont'd from P.9

Centres of Excellence and more access to veterans' hospitals, reforms to the New Veterans Charter, an increase for funeral expenses, action on veterans' homelessness and a public inquiry into the Department's breach of privacy with veterans' medical records. We continue to ask the government to end the clawback of retired and disabled CF and RCMP service pensions, extend the Veterans Independence Program to RCMP veterans, grant 'marriage after 60' pension and health benefits, provide better care for those suffering from PTSD, shorten wait-times for disability applications, extend vacation fairness for retired CF members, and eliminate or reform the Veterans Review and Appeal Board. The NDP have many more ideas to improve veterans' benefits and we advocate for a system that would evolve with the changing health care needs of veterans and expand access to programs and services.

The federal government must do much more to provide better programs and services for veterans, RCMP members, and their families and ensure they are properly cared for from the moment they sign up to the moment they pass away. For these brave men and women, Remembrance Day is every day. Lest we forget.

Introducing the

What is a Family Health Team?

The Ministry of Health and Long-Term Care defines a Family Health Team as "...an approach to primary health care that brings together different health care providers to co-ordinate the highest possible quality of care for you - the patient. FHT's are an important part of changing both the health care system and the way people think about health care. FHT's will focus more on preventing illness and promoting health. They will use proven tools to improve consistency, among members of the FHT, and to improve management of conditions such as diabetes and asthma. Family Health Teams will try to provide care that is more accessible and comprehensive. They will focus on making patients more involved in the management of their own health, commonly referred to as patient self-management.

How is the Chapleau and District FHT specific to the Chapleau area?

The CDFHT is located in the Chapleau Medical Centre and works in partnership with the physicians, local healthcare professionals, the Ministry of Health and Long-Term Care, North East LHIN and other community groups to identify areas of healthcare needs in the Chapleau community and to develop programs to address these needs.

What types of healthcare professionals work at the Chapleau & District FHT?

The Chapleau & District FHT is designed to give your family physician support from other complementary professionals who work collaboratively, each utilizing their experience and skills to ensure your healthcare needs are met. Although the composition of Family Health Teams varies greatly depending on its community's needs, the CDFHT is currently able to provide you with services from Registered Nurses and a Pharmacist. The CDFHT is actively recruiting other health professionals to join our team such as a Dietitian, Social Worker, Chiropodist and a Traditional Healer to improve your primary care experience.

How can I become a patient of a Physician in the Chapleau and District FHT?

Our Physicians are currently accepting new patients; please contact the office at the Chapleau Medical Centre directly by calling 705-864-0210.
